Dominion HS Drama Presents!
Louisa May Alcott's timeless classic
Little Women

Adapted by Scott Davidson

Thursday, Friday, Saturday,
Oct. 23-25 at 7:30,
Sunday, Oct. 26 at 3 p.m.

This production brings Louisa May Alcott's classic novel about a family of women who experience the challenges of coming of age in Civil War era New England to the stage. The four young March sisters are raised by their mother after their father leaves for battle as part of the Union Army. We experience the world through the eyes of Jo March, Alcott's autobiographical ingenue - a creative, independent-minded and tomboyish burgeoning author, who narrates the travails of the family. The sisters share laughter, tears, and tragedy over the course of several years, along with their mother, father, Hannah, crochety old Aunt March, and neighbor friends. The lovely sixteen year old Meg seeks love, the compassionate Beth is everyone's best friend, and precocious Amy embraces life. As they experience joys and financial struggles together during a war torn period, life's challenges only serve to bring the girls closer together and give us a richer understanding of the meaning of the word "family." Tickets are $7.00 and will be available for sale at the door. Come early for general seating. For info, call (571)434-4400 and ask for Amy Young.
